Lakewood Division Of Aging And North Coast Health Is Offering Art Therapy

by Barry Wemyss

The Lakewood Division of Aging and North Coast Health are collaborating to offer an exciting new program to older adults. Participants in this introduction to Art Therapy group will have a unique opportunity to express themselves by creating art in a supportive, community-focused setting. This program will be free to the participants.

Art therapy is a successful and highly regarded form of therapy that encourages people to express themselves through the process of creating art. This process has been shown to improve a person’s physical, emotional and mental well-being. Art therapy can also reduce stress, improve self-esteem and help to develop an improved sense of awareness of self and others.

While this program is all about you expressing yourself, there will be a board-certified art therapist and an intern on hand to provide instruction, guidance and direction as needed. Prior art-making experience is not required. We believe that everyone has that creative spark within them, so beginners are welcome. A wide variety of media will be explored, i.e. painting, drawing, collage, and all materials will be provided.

We will be conducting an initial introductory session on Friday, September 21, 2018, at 1:00 PM. Plan on joining us in the basement of the Lawther Center, 16024 Madison Ave. Any older adults, age 60 and older are welcome. This program is free, but we ask that you pre-register by calling the Division of Aging Activities Office at 216-529-5005.

Barry Wemyss is the Volunteer Services Supervisor for the City of Lakewood, Department of Human Services, Division Of Aging. He is a Lakewood resident.

Chronic Disease Self-Management: A Great New Class Offered By Lakewood Division Of Aging

by Barry Wemyss

If you are an adult, age 55 or older, with an ongoing or long-term health condition, the Lakewood Division of Aging is offering a great new class that just might make life a little more comfortable and easier to manage.

If you or someone you know has a chronic disease, join a free Chronic Self-Management series. You will get the support you need, find practical ways to deal with pain and fatigue, discover better nutrition and exercise choices, understand new treatment options, and learn better ways to talk with your doctor and your family about your health.

We can help you live a healthier life—and reduce the cost to healthcare systems—through our Chronic Disease Self-Management program (CDSM). For people with chronic illness, DCSM has been shown to improve health, function and communication with their doctors, while reducing distress and helping manage symptoms like fatigue, pain and depression.

This class will consist of six two and a half hour sessions. The first session will begin on Monday, September 10, 2018, and end on Monday, October 15, 2018. The hours for this class will be 9:00 AM to 11:30 AM, and it will be held in the basement of the Lawther Center, 16024 Madison Ave. Transportation is available for Lakewood seniors. In this class, you will learn from trained leaders who understand firsthand what you are experiencing. Set your own weekly goals and make a step-by-step plan to improve your health—and your life. To register for this class, or to get more information, please call the City of Lakewood, Division of Aging Activities Office at 216-529-5005.

Literature Series: Ruin and Rebirth in "The Sound and the Fury"
Presented by Barbara Parr
"The Sound and the Fury" is a literary classic known for its unconventional narrative style. William Faulkner's dreamlike vision of his fictional Yoknapatawpha County and the motif create a novel where the inner workings of the human mind are displayed. As each generation of Compsons struggles with the decline of the family reputation, four distinct sections share the stories of financial ruin, loss of faith, and death. This four-part course will be presented by Barbara Parr, an instructor with Case Western Reserve University's Laura and Alvin Segal Lifelong Learning Program. Please read the first section (April Seventh, 1928) for the first class. Registration is required. Register online at lifelonglearningcleveland.org or call (216) 226-8275, ext. 127.

Film - "The Long Riders" (1980) Directed by Walter Hill
Presented by Terry Meehan
Terry Meehan rides back into town with a new film series, "Dry Spell: Westerns of the 1980s." "The Long Riders" follows the exploits of a band of robbers led by Jesse James, Cole Younger and their brothers. To emphasize the brotherly motif, the film's cast includes four sets of real-life siblings: Stacy and James Keach, David and Keith Carradine, Dennis and Randy Quaid and Christopher and Nicholas Guest. Meehan will introduce each film with an original video presentation, followed by audience reaction and a lively discussion.

Concert - Scimitars Swing Band
Back in the '30s and 40s America needed a break from the dark days of the Great Depression and World War II. Relief came in the form of a new up-tempo jazz called Swing that swept the country with its cheerful syncopated rhythms. It was the kind of music that asked you to get up and dance. The Scimitars Swing Band specializes in the music of the '30s, '40s and '50s, the true era of the Big Bands, but are also known to mix it up with music of an earlier vintage, as well as some more current popular tunes. Help us kick off our season in a big band kind of way!

Unlock Your Family Tree With Genealogical Resources At The Library

by Elaine Rosenberger

On one Tuesday evening each month at 6:00 p.m., Deborah A. Abbott, PhD, leads a genealogy workshop for fifteen students in the Main Library Learning Lab. Dr. Abbott received her Bachelors of Science and Masters of Education degrees from Tuskegee University (Alabama) and her PhD degree from Kent State University (Ohio). A former professor of Counseling, Dr. Abbott presents lectures and workshops throughout the United States. Although she specializes in African American genealogy, she enjoys teaching genealogical methodology to everyone.

Dr. Abbott shows her students how to research their family trees and how to use the in-Library resource, Ancestry Library Edition. There are only fifteen slots available each month for Dr. Abbott’s 6:00 p.m. genealogy workshop, and registration is required. To register, call (216) 226-8275, ext. 127. Upcoming workshops will be held on September 25, 2018, October 30, 2018, November 27, 2018, and January 29, 2019 at 6:00 p.m. in the Main Library Learning Lab.

Ancestry Library Edition is a free online genealogical research tool that allows you to search for your ancestors in census, marriage, birth, and death records. Ancestry Library Edition is free to use every day at the Library. Thanks to OPLIN, the Ohio Public Library Information Network, Lakewood Public Library offers other online genealogical resources as well. These resources can be accessed from the library or from your home via the Library’s website. African American Heritage was created in partnership with leading African American genealogists to develop a comprehensive mix of resources, records, and tools specifically pertaining to African Americans. Fold3® Library Edition is the premier collection of historical military records, including the stories, photos, and personal documents of the men and women who served from the Revolutionary War through recent conflicts. HeritageQuest® Online is an essential collection of genealogical and historical sources for more than sixty countries, with coverage dating back to the 1700s.

Whether you sign up for a genealogy workshop with Dr. Abbott, explore Ancestry Library Edition in the library, or access African American Heritage, Fold3, or Heritage Quest from your home, the Library has genealogical resources for everyone.

Sunday With The Friends Welcome The Scimitars Swing Band

by Lisa Calfee

Sometimes when everything is at its very worst, the only reasonable thing to do is throw a big party. Headlines in the 30’s and 40’s were grim, but as Americans were struggling through the Great Depression and World War II, a killer diller dance party began sweeping the nation. The music behind the new craze was an up-tempo jazz called Swing.

The Scimitars Swing Band specializes in the music of the Big Band Era and is performing at Lakewood Public Library as part of our Sunday With The Friends program on Sunday, September 9, 2018. The party starts at 2:00 p.m. in the Main Library Multipurpose Room.

The Scimitars Swing Band is part of the Al Koran Shrine band tradition that began in 1905. Cleveland’s Al Koran is the 4th oldest Shrine center in North America.

The Shriners are beloved by all the children and families they have helped through their famous Shriners Hospitals for Children. The Shriners boast 22 non-profit children’s hospitals that never turn away a child in need with orthopedic conditions, burns, spinal cord injuries, or cleft lips and palates for a lack of funds. Thirty-two Learning Centers for Children are also supported by the Shriners. The Scimitars Swing Band is a proud part of this remarkable humanitarian tradition.

When they aren’t out doing good deeds, this talented jazz orchestra is bringing down the house with the music of Glenn Miller, Woody Herman, and Duke Ellington. So be sure to swing by the Main Library on September 9, 2018. It’s gonna be a gas.

Garfield Assistant Principal Hire Rounds Out Leadership Team

by Christine Gordillo

The Lakewood Board of Education approved Ouimet Smith, Shaker Heights Schools’ Director of Student Affairs, as the new Assistant Principal at Garfield Middle School. He replaces Tony Chiaravalle, who is moving to Lakewood High as a House Principal.

In his role as Director of Student Affairs, Smith worked with students and families to find positive approaches and solutions to challenges students face as they pursue their education. Smith instituted a successful Family and Community Engagement program at Shaker.

“I am so excited to get to work at Garfield Middle School. I cannot wait to meet the students, parents, and staff. I am so fortunate to be a part of the Lakewood City Schools community,” Smith said.

Before his role as Student Affairs Director, Smith was an Assistant Principal at two different Shaker schools, a middle school Language Arts teacher, and coached baseball, basketball, and football. In all his positions, Smith’s goal was to be a positive influence on the students with whom he worked.

Smith earned his Bachelor’s degree in Education from the University of Michigan, his Master’s degree in Educational Administration from Cleveland State University, and is currently working on completing his Doctoral degree in Urban Studies, also from Cleveland State University. He also holds a Superintendent’s license.

One Book Does Not Fit All

by Ted Nagel

Hi Lakewood. My name is Ted Nagel and I’m a reader. I say that in that way because I’m addicted to reading. And I love it. How I learned to love reading was through my high school summer reading program. Heading into my freshman year, I was required to read five books. I was not overjoyed. Five books?! Are you nuts? My school’s program, if I can remember that far back, had an extensive reading list with many of the classics, multiple genres, and a wide variety of topics. I think that I had to read three from that list and two of my choice.

I walked into that freshman English class with my five books written down on a sheet of paper to hand in. Just as some background, this was at a private school with a strong college-prep curriculum. The school had a lower school (5th through 8th grade) prep curriculum. The school had a lower school (5th through 8th grade) and about half the kids in the freshmen class were new and half were from the lower school. I thought that that I did pretty well to finish my five books. But as we were passing our lists forward, I noticed that the lower-school kids all had many more than five books on their lists. Some, a lot more. I was blown away! Who could finish more than five books in a summer?

Long story semi-less long, that was the summer that I found books. From that year forward, I too had more than my five books on my summer reading list. I found my favorite genres in Historical fiction, science fiction, fantasy and yes, I even added some of the classics to my repertoire. My vocabulary expanded exponentially. My imagination and desire to learn were put on steroids. I became a life-long learner.

I was also recently on a long road trip with my family and when it wasn’t my turn to drive, I started reading the mandatory summer book for every student in Lakewood High School which this year was “The Things They Carried,” by Tim O’Brien. It seemed like a fine book. It taught some pretty important lessons and gave perspective on an important period in US History. But I wasn’t excited to read it. It didn’t make me want to extend my non-driving time in the car so that I could just get a few more pages in. In short, it didn’t motivate me to read.

I know that there can be many reasons for assigning summer reading. I believe that one reason should be top priority: Summer reading should be about creating a love of reading. This should be priority number one with all other priorities well down the list. No single book will ever do that for all students. Variety is the spice of life (and all that). I’m not sure why Lakewood adopted the single book policy but I firmly suggest that they should re-address that reasoning. My Lakewood Student has never once loved the mandatory reading book. They are 0 for 2 for my daughter. She didn’t hate the books; they just were not something that excited her. They were another homework assignment that she had to complete. As such, they were a slog to get through and they were the only books she read during the summer.

I’m not saying that if Lakewood changes their policy, all of the students will learn to love books. What I am suggesting is that, if they have more personal choice, the chances are greatly increased for students to find something that they love. If they find something they love, they might want to learn more about it. If they find something that they love, they might want to read the next book in the series. If they find something that they love, they might be waiting with excitement and frustration for the next book from that author. Get rid of the summer homework assignment and let kids find something that they love.

Ted Nagel moved here with his wife (who grew up here) and family after retiring from the Army. He volunteers in the community primarily with sports but also through the Lakewood Congregational Church.

Back-To-School Ice Cream Social Is September 4

by Christine Gordillo

The annual back-to-school Ice Cream Social sponsored by the Lakewood Council of PTAs and the Lakewood Board of Education will take place Tuesday, Sept. 4, from 6:15-7 pm in the Garfield Middle School Gym. Members from the two middle school bands will kick things off, then Board members will scoop the free ice cream. You add the fixins! Come enjoy the music and meet your elected officials at this family-friendly event!

OFFENSE

The Ranger receiving corps includes an interesting trio that also plays on the Ranger baseball team. Sophomores Evan Hampton, sophomore Phoenix Jouriles, and junior Billy Murphy bring not only athleticism, but height to the position. Each is over six feet tall, which Thome hopes will create favorable matchups against opposing secondaries. Senior Aaron Kenney, who is 6’5”, is another big target. Slot receivers will include senior Will Adams, who will see time at running back, and others in the mix. These include Seamus O’Malley, Deeb Alawan, and Teon Smith. As always, the Eagles play one of the toughest schedules in the area. Perhaps the biggest news this year isn’t WHO the Eagles play, but WHEN they will play. For the first time in decades, St. Edward will host most of its home games on Friday night instead of Saturday. The move is intended to boost attendance, which is adversely affected on Saturdays by competition with college football and other weekend activities.

The Rangers feature a diverse set of running backs, led by brothers Milan Alawan, and Teon Smith. As fate would have it, this year’s Eagles will play at First Energy Stadium in downtown Cleveland, where they defeated the Cleveland Browns on opening day. With St. Ignatius as the Wildcat home game, will be played at First Energy Stadium. The Eagles will host most of its home games on Friday night instead of Saturday. The move is intended to boost attendance, which is adversely affected on Saturdays by competition with college football and other weekend activities. One of the Eagles five home games (October 12th vs. St. Joseph (Ontario)) will be played on campus at University of Michigan. Senior Jordan Castleberry gets include playmaking wide receiver Quintel Kent. Kent has committed to play college football at the University of Michigan. Senior Jordan Castleberry is expected to lead the running attack. Defense, the secondary will include senior Caden Kolesar; other key returners include Seamus O’Malley, Deeb Alawan, and Teon Smith.

Ranger defensive line

Senior Nate Bilkici returns to fill the weak side spot. Bilkici has impressed Thome all offseason. “I just trust him,” Thome says of Nate. Spencer Reynolds, Will Adams, and freshman Brandon Bates will fill the middle linebacker role. Junior Ethan Uechchi, junior Isaac Gomez and James Morrissey will play the strong side.

The secondary will include strong safety DJ Jackson, who Thome describes as his “most complete” player in the unit. “All summer everyone has been raving about him,” says the coach. The ball-hawking Evan Hampton will play free safety, and there are numerous others in the mix. These include Edwin Rodrigue, junior Austin Dachter, and sophomore Matt Bowen. The two cornerback positions are a fight between four talented players: Kyren Jefferson, Phoenix Jouriles, Billy Murphy, and Calvin Tillett. There will be lots of rotating among this group to keep them fresh. Punting duties will be handled by Edwin Rodriguez.

EAGLES GET EARLY CHANCE FOR REVENGE

Last year’s St. Edward season ended up with a second round playoff loss to Mentor in the OHSAA tournament. As fate would have it, this year’s Eagles will open the season at Mentor High School on August 24th. The Eagles, 10-2 last season, return many weapons from last year’s squad. Senior Garrett Druro, who shared duties last year with Zach Kincaid last year, will be the sole starting quarterback this year. His targets include playmaking wide receiver Quintel Kent. Kent has committed to play college football at the University of Michigan. Senior Jordan Castleberry is expected to lead the running attack. Defense, the secondary will include senior Caden Kolesar; other key returners include Seamus O’Malley, Deeb Alawan, and Teon Smith.

Rangers And Eagles Excited For New Season

The offensive line includes four starters returning from last year’s team. Senior Alvin Musai, considered by Thome to be the strength of the unit, will play at left tackle. Junior Justin Kenney, who is 6’5”, is another big target. Slot receivers will include senior Will Adams, who will see time at running back, and others in the mix. These include Seamus O’Malley, Deeb Alawan, and Teon Smith.

The Column Punk Broke:
Reviews Of Recent Releases By Local Bands, Pt. 76
by Buzz Kompier

Disclaimer: Record reviews are a tricky business. It’s one thing to enjoy a tape, but to pick out what you like (or dislike) about it? That being said, if I review your tape and I didn’t like something, don’t feel too bad. My opinion doesn’t matter all that much.

Brain Cave - Brain Cave - Tiny God Inc. - 3 songs - cassette, download

So, the guitarist and vocalist (though all three members are credited as vocalists, more on that in a minute) of Brain Cave is Michael Bellis, a name some readers may remember from my beloved Roobydoob (and Bultch, who are also good). In the note I received with this tape, I was told that this band does not sound like either of those bands, and I have to say I�agree. I actually thought that this would be some kind of powerviolence type thing because I know other members of The Roobydoobs are into that, but it’s not that either. I would put this firmly in the “alternative rock” camp, which is not what I expected at all. Some elements of post-hardcore, some elements of emo, the intro to the last song had me thinking they might be doing some kind of shoegaze thing…i think that last one, “Evacuate,” might be my favorite of the three, it kinda sounds like it has the most going on. I’m not sure who’s actually singing here, as all three members are credited with vocals (the other two are Matthew Ducey, who also plays drums, and John Snyer, who also plays bass), and yet, to me, it sounds like the same vocalist on all three tracks. Maybe I wasn’t paying close enough attention to that, or maybe they all just sound very similar. Or maybe they put that in specifically to mess with me. Who can say? To be honest, this isn’t exactly my preferred genre, but it’s decent stuff and I like to see when members of a band that sounds a certain way have other bands that sound completely different (aren’t John and Zach Roobydock doing a new wave band these days?). Some good riffs in there, the one from “Extra Earth” really wiggled its way into my head. Cool art, too. 3/5

(braincave.bandcamp.com)

Fat Vegan/Splat - Fat Vegan/Splat - self-released - 8 songs (5 Fat Vegan, 3 Splat) - cassette

Nothing quite like a split tape of two basically defunct bands! Fat Vegan have the three parts of “Meat Test,” which are all pretty ridiculous: some heavy metal riffin’ with lyrics about how you’re a pozer because you don’t eat enough meat. The “oh, Richie, show ‘em what you got” at the end is funny all three times for some reason. If you look at the tape itself, it says “Meat Test - You Fail” on it, which really is no surprise. Separating these three is “Clayton Jr,” a recording of some white trash Maury/Springer-esque dramatic phone call, and “Meat Treats,” which, this may shock you, is also pretty ridiculouis. A decent continuation of their earlier tape. Recommended for people who really like the song “Vegetarians Are Wimps.” Now, the Splat side. These three tracks, as I understand, were originally supposed to be on a split 7” with Mr. California, which seems unlikely at this point (I still have my fingers crossed). The first track here, “Burning Brains,” is incredible from the ‘can you shut the fuck up’ intro on. This song is basically an instant clas-sic in my book. Great bassline, great drumming, great guitar leads. Abso-lutely killer punk, just listen to this: “driving real fast ‘cause I wanna die, so listen up girl, let’s go for a ride.” Phe-nomenal stuff. “Small Town Pimp” is a dumb 30-second (maybe not quite so long that long) burner that somehow manages to be really catchy. The final track here, “Outer Space,” is another good punk tune (not quite as great as “Burning Brains,” but pretty darn good), with a riff that later got recy-cled for Bad Noids’ “Into The Future.” These three tracks really are great. It’s really a shame that they’ll likely never have a standalone 7” release of their own. I hope, in the future, that these songs (and Splat’s 7” on Saucepan) are remembered for the great punk music that they are and not just as “feat. members of Bad Noids and Fat Vegan.” I hate the cover art, but probably that’s the band’s favorite part, so maybe we’ll all just sound very similar. Or maybe they put that in specifically to mess with me. Who can say? To be honest, this isn’t exactly my preferred genre, but it’s decent stuff and I like to see when members of a band that sounds a certain way have other bands that sound completely different (aren’t John and Zach Roobydock doing a new wave band these days?). Some good riffs in there, the one from “Extra Earth” really wiggled its way into my head. Cool art, too. 3/5

Outer Spacist - Illness Is A-Creepin’ On A Come-Up

“Outer Spacist - I'll Be A Creepin’ On A Come-Up” is the title of this tape, which is actually the name of the band. They are also good. In the note I received with this tape, I was told that this band does indeed feature some kind of outer space, Mormonism, and pavilions. Huh. I looked it up and this band’s been around a while, with a few releases on the late Columbus Dis-count label from 8 or 9 years ago, and I’m wondering how deep this goes. Do these other records reveal more of the Outer Spacist truth? I’m sure they do. I don’t know whether Side B is better or just where things started to really click for me, but it’s a good side. I like when they do the minor chord- based songs with the acoustic in there, like “To Cross A Frozen River, Baby” (or, per the lyric sheet, “To Cross A Frozen River, Alright, Baby”). I like their approach to song titles as well: the title track also adds a “baby” onto the end of the phrase, as well as the earlier song “Outer Space Is Not For Everyone, Baby.” The more rockin’ “Outer Space Is The Place To Be” into the slower “Ohio Is The Other Place To Be” might be my favorite moment of the record. I always love a good ode to Ohio, even one imbued with Mor-monism and whatever else is going on here. The closing track, the fourth of several short synth instrumentals on the record, is called “Carnival Of Souls Telepathic Transmission,” and if the fact that Pere Ubu had an album called “Carnival Of Souls” has you wanting to make an Ubu connection, you can go right ahead. Baby. 3/5

Red Devil Ryders - Live In Columbus, OH - Quality Time Records - 7 songs - cassette

First note: I’m pretty sure this was self-released by the band, but since the QT logo is on there and this is all QT-affiliated people, I figured I’d put it down as well put it down. Red Devil Ryders is the full band version of Carter Luck-field’s “Crowley 666” tape, featuring Carter on guitar and vocals, Adam Spektor on bass and drums, and Lea Sc-print’s (or, per the lyric sheet, “To Cross A River, Alright, Baby”). The more rockin’ “Outer Space Is Not For Everyone, Baby” (or, per the lyric sheet, “To Cross A Frozen River, Alright, Baby”), I like their approach to song titles as well: the title track also adds a “baby” onto the end of the phrase, as well as the earlier song “Outer Space Is Not For Everyone, Baby.” The more rockin’ “Outer Space Is The Place To Be” into the slower “Ohio Is The Other Place To Be” might be my favorite moment of the record. Lakewood Is Art

"The Final Goodbye" With Scenes Filmed In Lakewood, Premieres At The Capitol Theater

by Robert Swanson

"The Final Goodbye" tells the tale of an aging private detective who is drawn into a web of kidnappings, murder and Nazi treasure in 1961 Cleveland. Directors Robert Swanson (Mil-Roy Pictures) and Donn R. Notage (Velvet Buck Productions) plus editor and special effects wizard James Neyman (WLKF Productions) have teamed up to create a nostalgic look at our city that is long gone. With pain-taking detail, the streets of yesteryear are brought back to life with antique cars, wardrobe and props. "The Final Goodbye" is a must see thriller set to premiere at the Capitol Theater 1390 West 65th Street for a "special event" on Sunday, September 9th. It will be a night to remember.

Although our feature takes place in Cleveland, major locations in Lakewood are highlighted. Mil-Roy Pictures is a Lakewood-based film troupe with many major performers living here, people like James R. Smith, Neil Donnelly, Dennis Ruskie, Dan Fox, Frank McCavinue, Mark Shane Phillips (all Lakewoodites), just to name a few. You'll see exciting scenes filmed at the Shore Restaurant (courtesy of Angelo and Tina Skantzos), several key moments occur at Westwood Dry Cleaners (courtesy of Leonard Malais), the funeral homes of Brinkman/Dress (courtesy of the late John Brinkman) and Hanna/McGourray (courtesy of Terry Stanton) were utilized for interior settings at strategic points. AllTronics Retail Systems (Sam Kandah) made possible a rare Curtis television from the 1950's. Bellino's Barber Shop (courtesy of Sam Bellino) aided with much needed 1961 style haircuts. The NEW Waterbury Nightclub (courtesy of Hoss Ashofteh) was the mobster watering hole. The dining room of John and Karin Zimmermann's home on Cook Avenue provided means for a major gun battle. John and Karin planned to remodel and gave us free reign to riddle the area with a barrage of bullets. I could go on and on, but you'll see 'every' location when viewing "The Final Goodbye". Lakewood was very important in producing this motion picture of good guys vs. bad guys with "all" concerned learning an important lesson...don't be a do-badder!

Order tickets online now for this special showing on Sunday, September 9th at 7 p.m. in the Capitol Theater. Tickets may be purchased at the door on the night of the premier, however online purchasing guarantees you a seat and is encouraged. We don't wish anyone turned away if the movie sells out. See you there!

Local Photographer's Picture Honored in Wyoming

by Bob Soltys

A picture that Lakewood resident Bob Soltys took last fall at a Wyoming ranch was recognized as Best of Show at the 'Spirit of Wyoming' juried exhibit at the Sage Community Art Gallery in Sheridan, Wyoming.

The juror, professional photographer Shawn Parker, described the photo, 'Three Amigos,' as follows: "This photograph could have been taken yesterday, or it could have been taken 50 years ago - the only clues that date it are the cup in the cowboy's hand on the right, and the modern-looking brace on the foot of the cowboy on the left. The Wyoming experience is often a timeless one, and I think this image reflects that. These gentlemen have been hard at work at something, but they still find time for levity - at least that's the way I choose to read it. The black and white strips away the potential for distractions and allows the viewer an opportunity to at least imagine they're in on the joke,"

Bob took the photo during a lunch break during fellow photographer Adam Jakel's 'Willow Creek Ranch' workshop in Kaycee, Wyoming last September. Long a fan of the West's peaceful wide open spaces, Bob attended the workshop as part of his recovery from the death of his longtime friend and companion, Lucky, the Jack Russell Terrier. He said the Three Amigos - cowboys Clint and Mike, and ranch owner Barry Crigan - have worked together for years and bantered back and forth quite a bit. "I was so busy making pictures that I don't remember what the joke was," Bob said.

An artist's proof of Three Amigos, and of "Wyoming Traffic Jam," are on display at John Rehner Fine Art and Framing in Lakewood. Bob's other photos of Willow Creek Ranch, the 100th OVI, Paris, and his friend Manny the Jack Russell Terrier are online at www.bobsoltys.net.

Bob Soltys is a photographer and former Navy officer.
L.B.M. - It's A Secret

by Eva Starr

Upon reading the recent edition of the Lakewood Observer I noticed Obie, (Jim O'Bryan) which is how I've always known him, from my early bartender days at the Lakewood Rush Inn in the 80s, is asking people to check out the culinary scene in Lakewood and write about it.

Upon moving back to Lakewood after nearly ten years in San Diego as a chef, I thought what a great idea. My passion is writing and cooking, what a great combo. Since moving back I've been slowly but surely discovering the plethora of culinary delights Lakewood now has to offer. I'm on a mission.

I decided to check out Birdtown, since that is one part of town that remains virgin territory to me. I walked into the L.B.M. 12301 Madison on the corner of Ridgewood, formerly known as The Corner Pub. They just opened, it was 4 o'clock, but I thought “It’s 5 o’clock somewhere.” I met John Gibian, one of five owners and the bartender.

I looked over the craft cocktail list and ordered a classic margarita – $6 during Happy Hour, which runs week-days 4-7 pm. The first thing I noticed having been a bartender for decades, was they didn’t use that big gallon jug of Lemix, or shoot it out of a cobra-gun, which is what bars use for soda and mixes etc. In fact, they don’t even have one. They use fresh ingredients for their hand-crafted cocktails, and dehydrated fruit, which they make in-house, Jimmy Buffet look out!

After looking over the menu and talking with John, his recommendation was the Pork Belly, hoisin braised with spicy pickled veggies. I’m not much for a lot of fat, that’s what Pork Belly is, however it does melt in your mouth, and the hoisin complemented it quite nicely. Since I was heading down to the Little Italy Feast, I wanted to travel light, saving room for festival delicacies.

I was impressed with the paper straw I was given. John said they never started out with plastic, they are environmentally and sustainability conscious. They use local food purveyors and the menu items are seasonal, with some items changing every two to three weeks.

Upon further discussion with John, I learned that L.B.M. won the coveted Tales of the Cocktail 2018 award for Best New Cocktail Bar USA – Central. What the Oscar is to film, the Tales of the Cocktail award is to the restaurant/cocktail industry.

The ambience is unique, the bar top, shelving and a long table in the dining room were made from a single felled Sycamore tree. There is a Viking ship above one of the doorways, and other artifacts which lend a little mystery to the place. Speaking of mystery, what does L.B.M. stand for? I asked John. It’s a secret. The secret is spreading fast about this little corner pub, and it won’t be long before they sail to seas unknown for more intriguing menu ingredients. Hours of operation Mon – Saturday 4 pm – 2:30am, closed Sundays.

Lakewood, No It’s Foodwood!

by Jim O’Bryan

In the past couple years Lakewood has become a destination for good food, dining and entertainment experiences. This year we will be partnering with Foodwood® on a series of articles about Lakewood restaurants, bars and nightspots from an insider perspective. We have seen many lists of “the Best of” and noticed—even been upset— that some of the best places we know were not included. “How could they possibly ignore…?”

So with the help of professionals in the food and entertainment business we will take a look at menus, dining rooms and kitchens, give background to help you learn more about your favorite spots, learn even more about how and why they happened, and who and what history moulds not just who they are, but their signature dishes. This will be an interesting ride, we promise you.

Along the way we are inviting everyone to send in suggestions of their favorite places in and around Lakewood, and even write some reviews yourself. All will make it to our new Foodwood section on the website, but if we publish your review in the LO Print edition, we will pay for that meal, and you will get two Lakewood/Foodwood T-Shirts. How is that for a deal!

To submit a review online, go to the Member Center section of the Lakewood Observer website, sign-in, click on “Submit New Story”, and make sure you choose “Foodwood” as the category for where your story should be.

Thank you to all and thank you to every owner, cook, server and busser.
Cuyahoga County Auditor Values Lakewood Hospital Property At $24,499,500

by Edward Graham

In the year 2015, the year that Lakewood's mayor began lying to our citizens, telling them that our hospital had to be shut down, the Cuyahoga County Auditor placed the real estate value of Lakewood Hospital at $24,499,500! Now, the mayor talks as if it is only worth $5,000.00. And he wants to spend millions of taxpayer dollars to tear down this very valuable property. And then, he wants to give away the land for only $1 to a developer who is being sued by the City of Beachwood for over $80,000 of unpaid city income tax!

Let's think about that. The city now owns real estate worth $24,499,500. The mayor wants to spend many millions of our hard-earned tax-payer's dollars to tear down the building and then, he wants to give away the land for $1? We have heard presidential candidates talk about voodoo economics. Then again, we have also heard ordinary citizens talk about plain old crooked government. One cannot help but wonder. Memories Of Lincoln Ave.

by Tom Fahey

I could almost hear all the kids yelling at each other. The five Anellas girls, the seven Sammon kids tormenting my little brother Danny, the Hyland children, all 2,397 or so, the Kellys, and Fitzgeralds and Homsans and Girders. And just to show we weren't just a street of Irish, the Nebezars, Stas-kos, Lavacra, Ghvara and Massas.

I remember the games of kick-the-cat, red rover and street football. And the call of "Cat!" when a vehicle came down Lincoln. I remember cutting through Kelly's backyard to get to Marlboro. As a matter of fact, we could cut through the backyards to get all the way from Warren Rd. to the high school.

Politics Around Lakewood

The Other Side Of Politics

by Elizabeth Halko

There is, contrary to popular belief, another side to politics. A brighter side. A well intended, positive side. A side that’s not always completely political, but a personal, and a great opportunity for adventure. A large part of my identity has been shaped from my experiences working on political campaigns. Quite frankly, my acquisition of political knowledge is perhaps the smaller portion of all of the information and insights I gained from my lit-dropping, fundraising, postcard and article writing endeavors, and I owe thanks beyond words to State Representative Nickie Antonio for providing these and other experiences to me, literally at my request. Without further ado, I have stories to tell you…

Someone asked me once how I felt when the first candidate I worked for lost her election. I replied with the typical oh-I-was-really-disappointed-but-we-did-everything-we-could-kind of answer and left it at that—but obviously that’s not where this tale ends.

Former Lakewood City Councilwoman Cindy Marx realized in no extended period of time that I had experienced relatively little of the city I’d lived in my entire life, and she avidly introduced me to her diverse group of volunteers, supporters, and friends—they were black, white, old, young, straight, gay, male, female, from Lakewood or from India. They were captivating.

She organized our meetings on the eastside of Lakewood where I had never truly been before, we would walk through the local businesses and leave campaign cards, and I remember being profoundly averse to everything I didn’t know was here.

One day we visited Indigo Perfumery, a tiny perfume store which looks like it’s been dropped out of Paris; it smelled of patchouli, orange zest, and wildflowers, the room sparkled as the sun reflected off the plethora of small glass bottles and it created an image of beauty that has yet to dim in my mind. I met artists and went to swanky cafes and felt these new and authentic vibes that filled my soul and became an inseparable part of my own.

Yes, in this experience I learned about lit-dropping, local politics, fundraising, and issues, but I also began to value diversity and originality in a way that I never had before. I understood, quite simply, that it is one thing to superficially “know” the value of diversity and another entirely different novel to internalize, see with your own eyes, experience with physical and tangible interaction, the value of diversity. I found within myself an undeniable affection for the small, the original, the unknown, the out of the box, the pure and the kindhearted.

On these principles I have built the essence of who I am.

I had significantly more logistical luck on the second campaign I worked on—Nickie Antonio for State Senate—and by “logistical luck” I mean that our portion of Senate District 23’s voter pie panned out higher than our opponent’s on election night. Aka, we had a solid win. In the days I spent working on this campaign, I found myself wholly inspired by the neighborhoods of Cleveland I walked through—Old Brooklyn, West Park, Gordon Square Arts District, Ohio City in particular stuck out to me—it’s full of small, original, colorful homes and quirky apartments, it’s bright, with courts that lead between roads, some houses less kept than others, but nonetheless homey in nature, unique, and virtually unknown to me before this experience.

At the end of each day on the campaign trail, I’d feel thoroughly fulfilled after working with people and for someone who shared a common set of values and whose end all be all goal was to leave the world and our communities in a better place than before. And, as someone who is a writer, an artist, and a thinker, the interactions I had with all of these different people and places left me swirling with ideas and thoughts and vibrations to express. So yes, I learned about how a campaign office operates, how phone banking is done, about more issues, but at the end of the day all of these experiences became fundamental layers of the person I am today, building upon what I already knew about myself and showing me new and unique facets of my identity.

Win or lose, I’ve evidently discovered that political campaigns have the potential to be more than just the task of convincing a populace to vote for someone. I’ve also noticed that this “more” is not just personal experiences either, like the ones I’ve just described. A campaign done right does not simply advocate for the person it is aiming for someone, but when done well, they have the inherent prospective to spread ideas, inspire discussion, and make us aware of what the real issues facing society are and who the best person is to address them.

Now, obviously not all campaigns are run this way or create this kind of impact. I have very stringent standards for who I work for and for what reasons I give my time to, as a seventeen year old high school student, there are plenty of other things I could be doing—there are politicians in all parties whose motive are elsewhere and not in the best interests of those they serve. I have looked to join campaigns and leaders that embody truth, honesty, transparency, educate, debate, and a genuine desire to improve society and the lives of those who live within it. In my experience in the political world, State Representative Nickie Antonio has always possessed these qualities and she runs her campaigns in accordance with these values—despite our success in the May primary, she does have a Republican opponent in the general election, and we’ll need all hands on deck to ensure another success.

Of course, I encourage you to jump on board as many quality campaigns as you can, and I hope that my stories have inspired you to consider the other side of politics, sometimes hard to find, but nonetheless still present.

Elizabeth is a senior at Lakewood High School—she is very active in local politics, co-president of the LHS Model UN team, and is involved in Help To Others as a volunteer, a new member of the executive committee, and a middle school leader. She is looking to attend college as a Political Science/ Public Policy major, and currently works as an intern for State Representative Nickie Antonio.
Rotary Shoe Boxes Aid Children Of The Dump

by Lynn Donaldson
On August 1, members of the Rotary Club of Lakewood and Rocky River joined Rotarians across the United States by participating in an international service project known as "Children of the Dump." Shoe boxes for the Children of the Dump in Chinandega, Nicaragua, were filled with toiletries, clothing, school supplies and age-appropriate games or toys. Each year Rotarians will travel to Nicaragua to personally witness and participate in the work being done there. They will also help deliver the supplies to the children.

Rotary members purchased items for the shoe boxes, filled the boxes, and delivered them to an area collection facility where they will be picked up and transported with other clubs' boxes to Nicaragua. The shoe boxes serve as an incentive to the children to remain in school. In order to receive one of the gift shoe boxes, the child must be attending school on a regular basis and earning satisfactory grades. The goal is to break the cycle of poverty by providing food, education and programs to encourage good health. The ultimate goal is to relocate the children from the dump to a life of dignity.

It is estimated that there are 800 children in Chinandega, under the age of five, fending for themselves, often competing with dogs, cattle and goats for the food. These children seemingly have no other choice if they are to survive. Young men are often the first to climb aboard the trucks and wagons loaded with overflowing garbage headed for the dump. Even before the drivers stop with the stinky trash, sometimes bagged and sometimes not, the young men know this could be a grim opportunity for those who act quickly. They know that in that stinky trash they may find items of value like plastic bottles, aluminum cans or even food. Women will rake the sides of the loads with sticks fitted with hooks, pulling the debris loose and onto the ground. At that point, the rotten mess comes in reach of the young children.

The story of the Chinandega dump began in 1998. Hurricane Mitch stayed over Nicaragua for days, dropping more than 60 inches of rain. A 30-foot wall of water flowed down the volcano, picking up trees and boulders before smashing into a village, destroying everything in its path. Before the mudslide, the town had about 4,500 residents. Twenty-eight hundred remain buried from the disaster. Nicaragua is the poorest nation in the Western Hemisphere, second only to Haiti. Nicaragua is about the size of Alabama, with a population of 5.3 million. Approximately four million of those people are living in poverty, earning less than $1 per day. The adult population suffers from a 33% illiteracy rate with 50% of the children dropping out of school before completing the fifth grade, usually because the parents cannot afford the school supplies needed.

LakewoodAlive proudly announces Discount Drug Mart as the Title Sponsor for the 11th Annual Spooky Pooch Parade. Dogs will rule the day on Saturday, October 20, when this popular costumed canine event returns to Downtown Lakewood from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m.

The Spooky Pooch Parade consists of a festival within Kaufman Park (15450 Detroit Avenue), a parade through Lakewood’s downtown business district on Detroit Avenue and an awards presentation. A favorite Halloween tradition for Northeast Ohio dog lovers and their families, this popular community festival represents one of the only events of its kind within the region, providing a tail-wagging good time for canine and human guests alike. Last year’s Spooky Pooch Parade drew nearly 350 canines and an estimated crowd of 2,500 people.

Discount Drug Mart, an Ohio-based, full-service drug store, has served Northeast Ohio for nearly five decades, priding itself on superior customer service, low prices and convenient one-stop shopping. This longtime local company has two locations in Lakewood (13123 Detroit Avenue and 15412 Detroit Avenue), the latter of which is located just south of Kauffman Park, the site of the Spooky Pooch Parade.

“We are thrilled to have Discount Drug Mart serve as Title Sponsor of our Spooky Pooch Parade for a fourth consecutive year,” said Ian Andrews, LakewoodAlive’s Executive Director. “Discount Drug Mart represents a tremendous partner to LakewoodAlive and we appreciate its many valuable contributions to our community.”

Sponsorship opportunities and vendor applications are now available for this much-anticipated autumn event. For more information regarding serving as a sponsor or vendor for the Spooky Pooch Parade, please contact Vince Williams, LakewoodAlive’s Event & Volunteer Coordinator, at 216-521-0655.

Registration for the 11th Annual Spooky Pooch Parade will open in the coming weeks. For more information, please visit LakewoodAlive.org/

You make use of it every day, yet how much do you truly know about the electrical system flowing throughout your home?

LakewoodAlive will host Knowing Your Home: Electrical 101 on Thursday, September 20, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Clock Electric, Inc. in Lakewood’s Birdstown Neighborhood (1624 Count Avenue). The 10th workshop of 2018 for this popular home maintenance educational series seeks to equip attendees with a comfort level regarding electrical basics.

Led by friend of LakewoodAlive John Turner, this workshop is designed to provide the average homeowner with a basic understanding of electrical current, a home’s electrical map and structure, the different components comprising your electrical system and important safety tips. Our goal is to empower residents so that they feel comfortable discussing, contracting and working with their electrical systems. We want to take the shock out of electricity!

Class size is limited to 50 participants, and this workshop is currently sold out. To reserve your spot on the waiting list for “Knowing Your Home: Electrical 101,” please call 216-521-0655.

Now in its fifth year, LakewoodAlive’s “Knowing Your Home” series draws hundreds of attendees annually. Visit LakewoodAlive.org/KnowingYourHome to learn more. Our workshop series is generously supported by: Citizens Bank, City of Lakewood, Cleveland Lumber Company, First Federal Lakewood, Remax Beyond 2000 and Third Federal Savings & Loan.

In lieu of charging for these events, we are asking participants to consider either making a donation to LakewoodAlive or bringing canned foods or other non-perishable items for donation to the Lakewood Community Services Center. We appreciate your support.

That's when everything changes. When your idea becomes even bigger because you meet someone who can help make it stronger. Before, it was just a sketch on a napkin. Now it’s a startup. We want to be part of it, with personalized communication solutions designed to help startups make the connections that can make all the difference.

Because connections change everything.
