St. Edward High School Edwardian Players Present "Urinetown The Musical"

by Connie Massie

The Edwardian Players, theatre group from St. Edward High School, will present "Urinetown" on November 21, 22 and 23 at 7:30pm and November 24 at 3:00pm at St. Edward High School in Lakewood, Ohio. "Urinetown" won the 2002 Tony Awards for Best Book of a Musical (Greg Kotis) as well as Best New Musical Score (Mark Hollman).

Although the title is somewhat unsettling, "Urinetown" is an incredibly thoughtful show appropriate for all ages. An hysterical musical comedy, the show satirizes municipal politics, the legal system, capi-

Lakewood Holiday Traditions

A Bridge From The Past To The Future

by Jim O'Bryan

Thanksgiving, Christmas, Kwanzaa, Chanukah, New Years are all spectacular end of the year celebrations that bring family and friends together. Good, or merely interesting, it is this time of year when traditions are shared, taught, learned and passed on from generation to generation. Here in Lakewood we have an establishment that not only signals everything good about the holidays, it also provides an amazing bridge from one generation to the next. All can be made better this season with a simple visit to Mr. Christmas, aka, Mr. Holiday, Bill Hixson, at the one and only Hixson's Barn. A northern Ohio tradition for over sixty-six years!

Bill Hixson has been a family friend since he opened the place. I have written about how my closeness to the man kept the legend at bay. But the legend of the man and the store are well deserved.. We could look back at the number of presidents Bill Hixson has been chosen by to decorate their White House Christmas Trees. I could go into the hundreds of ornaments Bill has designed of Lakewood, Cleveland and Northern Ohio-most memorable sites, and soundly remembered and beloved memories. This year he introduced at least 5 new ornaments, 3 headed to the White House tree. All are available at the store currently. They sell out fast!

Thousands of ornaments available!

The most important thing Hixthe son store and the man do, is provide tangible bridge from generation to generation. As long as the store has been around it has brought together a near perfect eclectic view/collection of past present and future. With just enough of each, that even the current generation which fears shopping with the family and grandma and grandpa finds something that catches their eyes, and soon their imaginations. By the time they leave, their hearts are also won over, and another seed from another generation of memories, traditions and family celebration has been planted.

Each year I wonder what changes will come to Lakewood; the one thing I rarely wonder about is what will be in or at Hixson's. As long as Bill walks the face of the earth with trusted Eunice at his side, holiday traditions past, and future will have a present and future will have a home on Detroit Avenue.

Stop by this year, and see all the memories and traditions magically come to life. Bill has updated his Christmas Holiday Traditions book, and has beautiful examples of all of it in the store for your amusement, remembrance, and some can even be purchased and brought into your family.

Strokes Of Genius Concludes With Art Show

Learning about famous artists and viewing their works sparked these children to produce their own masterpieces during the Strokes of Genius program.

by Marge Foley

The fall session of Strokes of Genius at the Lakewood Public Library came to a close in November as participating second, third, and fourth graders proudly showcased their talent at an Art Show for family and friends.

Each week students learned about the life and work of a different artist and then completed an art project motivated by the style of that artist. Artwork created by Paul Klee, Alexander Calder, Marcel Duchamp, Wassily Kandinsky, and M. C. Escher provided the inspiration for the students' creative efforts. Oil pastels, wire, paint, cut paper, and rolled paper were some of the mediums used.

One project involved painting with string. The young artists dipped long pieces of string into tempera paint and placed the string on paper. This resulted in beautiful works of art!

In addition, public art and sculptures in Cleveland and Lakewood were studied. Each participant took home their creative work and a certificate.

Debbie Darling:

Songs Of The 30s, 40s, 50s And 60s

by Lisa Calfee

In the 1930s, folks tapped their toes to hits from the Great American Songbook with their families gathered around the living room radio. Now we keep the beat with handheld smartphones, but favorites like Cole Porter's "I've Got You Under My Skin" or George Gershwin's, "S' Wonderful" have never left our playlists.

Debbie Darling will perform some of the time-honored tunes of the 30s, 40s, 50s and 60s and tell the stories behind them when she visits Lakewood Public Library on Sunday, November 24, 2019, at 2:00 p.m. The accomplished singer and songwriter will be accompanied by musician David Strieter.

The Great American Songbook isn't a book at all. It is a classification of music from the early Twentieth Century that includes Broadway tunes and popular hits by composers such as Irving Berlin, the Gershwins, Duke

Ellington and Rodgers and Hammer-

And while there is some debate as to which songs should or should not be included in the Great American Songbook, Debbie Darling will help prove the reason this music has endured -- in spite of dramatic cultural changes over the last ninety years -- is because it was just so s'marvelous.

This Sunday With The Friends program takes place in the Main Library Multipurpose Room.

A Lake Erie Shipwreck:

Past, Present And Future

by Amy Kloss

For most of us, Lake Erie is a broad expanse of beautiful water, a recreational highlight of life in Lakewood. But Lake Erie was once a bustling commercial water highway and below its surface lie hundreds of shipwrecks, abandoned in the murky depths of the lake. One of these wrecks is the Dundee, a wooden schooner that went down in a storm that swept over Lake Erie in September of 1900.

You can learn more about the Dundee on Wednesday, December 11, 2019 at 7:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium from Carrie Sowden, Archaeological Director of the National Museum of the Great Lakes. She will discuss the history and archaeology of the Dundee and plans for its future preservation.

The Dundee was carrying a load of iron ore to Ashtabula on September 11, 1900 when the tail end of a hurricane swept over Lake Erie and caused the ship to founder eleven miles west of Cleveland. The schooner lost her rudder in the waves, and the captain and crew climbed up the rigging and lashed themselves to the masts. The cook, Kate Hoffman, was lost in the storm and her body was never recovered. The remaining six crewmen were rescued. The Dundee was discovered in the 1980s and has since become a popular scuba diving site.

Join us on December 11, 2019 at Lakewood Main Library to discover more about Northeast Ohio's maritime history. This program is co-sponsored by Lakewood Historical Society.

Lakewood Education Observed

Staff Spotlight Honorees:

Christine Foote and Jason Saksa

by Christine Gordillo

CHRISTINE FOOTE

Teaching & Learning Coordinator Christine Foote has spent her career in education laser-focused on one mission: improving student literacy.

"My passion is to improve life through literacy outcomes," Foote says. By improving literacy, she says, more opportunities open up in life. The passion was stoked in Foote's college years when as a student she volunteered in an inner-city program and saw how literacy challenges held students back.

Foote, who joined the District in 2005 as an instructional coach, carries out her mission by assisting our secondary-level teachers in developing curriculum and instructional strategies and facilitating professional development opportunities. Her collaborative spirit and deep knowledge gained from years spent as a teacher from elementary to college level are invaluable assets as she helps faculty write courses of study, select textbooks and develop assessments for their students.

Over her nearly 15 years with Lakewood Schools, Foote has been able to develop relationships and gain trust with teachers and administrators across all grade levels which makes the collaborative process of developing curriculum easier.

Christine Foote

Foote says she is grateful to be able work alongside passionate educators who all have the same goal in mind of helping students succeed. "The collective energy here is amazing," she says. "People here make the magic happen."

JASON SAKSA

Lakewood High Health teacher Jason Saksa has always been about staying fit and healthy, going back to his childhood days as an athlete and continuing into his early career as a PE teacher. For the last 20 years, he's been able to share his passion for building and maintaining physical, mental and emotional health with his students.

"Jason is devoted to helping students learn the skills they need to make healthy choices throughout their lifetime," says Saksa's nominator, intervention specialist Lisa Crane.

It is in Saksa's classroom that LHS teenagers learn about so many of the issues they often cope with during the high school and young adult years – anxiety and depression, social media, alcohol and drugs, eating disorders, etc. Or as Saksa likes to say, "I teach life class."

Saksa, who joined the District in 1998 and LHS in 2001, engages his students with interactive and real life lessons, often through the many outside speakers he brings into his classroom. Speakers have included recovering opiate addicts and eating disorder patients, professionals with organizations such as LifeBanc and the Cleveland Rape Crisis Center. He feels the speakers offer a new voice and perspective during class and give the students a boost of energy. "They can tune you out if they only hear your voice every day," he says.

The potential his class has to change the path of a student from making poor to healthy choices is not lost on Saksa. "It's pretty powerful to think that you can make an impact that might change somebody's life."

PE teacher Joshua Dolsonich, another of Saksa's nominators, believes Jason is the right guy for the job: "He is a great teacher full or knowledge and does an excellent job of transferring that knowledge to his students."

Adds Dolsonich: "Jason is always willing to go above and beyond to help students and to make sure they understand the importance of living a healthy lifestyle."

Ohio Species Survival! How Many Ohio Endangered

Animals Can You Name? (First of a three-part series)

by Cullen McQuay

Grade 3

Mrs. Gerg's class

How many Ohio endangered or threatened species in Ohio can you name?

Do you know that the Northern Long Eared Bat is in trouble in our very own state, Ohio?

A disease called white nose syndrome is killing bats!

I hope you are as concerned as I am!

Why is this bat called the Northern Long Eared Bat?

As you might guess, this bat has long ears!

The Northern Long Fored Bat is a

The Northern Long Eared Bat is a threatened species in Ohio.

Scientists saw this disease first in 2006, and white-nose syndrome has spread fast.

The population of northern longeared bats have declined by up to 99 percent in the Northeast. Other things are affecting the Northern Long Eared Bat too.

Sometimes people put up gates or other barriers to keep people from caves and mines. This keeps bats from flying and moving from the cave. These gates can change the temperature of a cave by a few degrees making their homes horrible for them to live.

People explore caves and disturb bats while they are hibernating. This wakes up the bats and they use up valuable energy storage.

This can lead to the Northern Long-Eared Bat not surviving the winter.

Wind turbines kill bats and road construction disrupts roosting bats in the summer.

What can we do to help?

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service offers these tips:

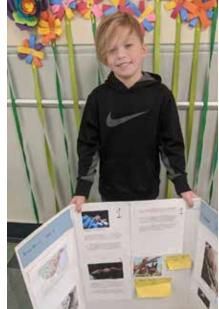

Do Not Disturb Hibernating Bats Leave Dead and Dying Trees Standing: Like most eastern bats, the northern long-eared bat roosts in trees during summer. Where possible and not a safety hazard, leave dead or dying trees on your property. Northern longeared bats and many other animals use these trees.

Install a Bat Box: Dead and dying trees are usually not left standing, so trees suitable for roosting may be in short supply and bat boxes may provide additional roost sites. Bat boxes are especially needed from April to August when females look for safe and quiet places to give birth and raise their pups.

Spread the Word: Understanding the important ecological role that bats play is a key to conserving the northern long-eared and other bats.

Visit www.whitenosesyndrome. org for more information about whitenose syndrome.

Join and Volunteer: Join a conservation group; Volunteer at a local nature center, zoo, or national wildlife refuge.

Cullen McQuay

Bats are an important part of Ohio's ecosystem. Without the Northern Long-Eared Bat, we will be in trouble.

Let's do something today!

by Norah Daisy Murtha

Mrs. Gerg's Class

Did you know there are endangered species in Ohio?

Can you name them?

I know that the Karner blue butterfly is one.

I am the voice of this special Ohio insect!

The Karner blue butterfly was Federally listed as an endangered species in 1992.

Did you know that by 1988, the Karner Blue Butterfly had been eliminated from Ohio?

It is currently listed as a statewide and nation-wide endangered species.

The main threat to the species has been habitat loss.

The Karner blue butterfly is endangered because people are getting rid of fields to make buildings where these butterflies live and eat.

The larva or caterpillar is only dependent on the wild lupine plant as its food source. The adult butterflies depend upon a number of flowering plants. This limits where they can survive.

Norah Daisy Murtha

Also did you know that the lack of natural disturbance, such as wildfire and grazing by large mammals, has made their population go down? This type of disturbance helps maintain the butterfly's habitat by pushing back forests, helping lupine and flowering plant growth.

Did you know people collect Karner blue butterflies?

Butterfly numbers are very low and collection of even a few butterflies could harm the butterfly population.

Collection is illegal without a permit from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service!

In 1997, adult Karner blue butterflies from Michigan were taken to the Toledo Zoo, where a population of adults was bred.

Adults released at Kitty Todd Nature Preserve in the summer of 1998 have bred and are doing well.

Fortunately, the Karner blue is once again part of the Ohio land-scape.

If people don't do something your kids and grandkids will never see it.

The Karner blue butterfly needs your help!

What can you do?

Here are a few tips from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service:

Learn more about the Karner blue butterfly and other endangered and threatened species.

Understand how the destruction of habitat leads to loss of endangered and threatened species and our nation's plant and animal diversity.

Tell others about what you have learned.

Volunteer - Volunteer at a nearby zoo, nature center, or National Wildlife Refuge.

Join - Join a conservation group; many have local chapters.

Plant - Plant a garden with flowers that attract butterflies. Use native plants in your lawn and gardens.

Work with me to keep Karner blue butterfly living in Ohio! They are an important part of Ohio's ecosystem!

Lakewood Cares

Holiday Service Project

by Roberta Hayes

Do you know what "food insecurity" means? The U.S. Department of Agriculture defines food insecurity as a lack of consistent access to enough food for an active healthy life. What that means in our world is that some people are unable to afford healthy food- or any food at all- for a brief or extended period of time. It may mean that people have to choose between housing and needed medication over food for themselves and their families. In Cuyahoga County 233,500 (or 18.6%) experience food insecurity at one time or another.

As we approach the holiday season and begin to count our blessings, I hope you will consider being a blessing to the neighbors in our community. Lakewood United Methodist Church in cooperation with the Lakewood Community Service Center (LCSC) is sponsoring a "REVERSE HOLIDAY CALENDAR." Each day add an item to a box. The week before or the week after Christmas, we ask that you bring the box and its contents to either Lakewood United Methodist Church at 15700 Detroit Avenue or to the Lakewood Community Service Center at 14230 Madison Avenue. Beatlemania At The Barton Senior Center

by Adelaide Crnko

More than 50 years ago today, the Beatles came our way to play. On October 17th, the Barton Senior Center was the place to be to celebrate those days with a dose of Fab Four nostalgia.

Sponsored by Lakewood's O'Neill Healthcare, "Beatlemania" represented a blast from the past as many attendees wore tie dye shirts made by Barton Center staff and volunteers. Oldies played as guests lunched on offerings from new neighbor, Ohio City Burrito.

There were raffles and prizes before the crowd streamed past tables of memorabilia which included vintage photos, posters and clippings from local media. Next came the day's main event.

Dave Schwensen, author of "The Beatles in Cleveland," gave a lively presentation showcasing the band's two mid '60's concerts downtown. His comprehensive discussion began with the "preBeatles" cultural climate and progressed to their rise to fame. Schwensen's insider knowledge then became the focus of his talk. Stories of behind the scenes maneuvering by local radio stations (to get the megastars to come to Northeast Ohio) were revealed as well as other anecdotes. One had the Beatles traveling by bus from Detroit to Cleveland. Along the way, they detoured to a rest stop in Vermilion where they were confronted by a car full of girls who had followed them all the way from the Motor City!

Then came the actual performances. Despite the fact that, according to one officer, the Beatles had more protection than JFK, both shows were temporarily halted due to fans rushing the stage. This resulted in the Beatles being banned from performing in Cleveland in the future. Schwensen's entertaining narratives were punctuated by rare footage of those infamous concerts and the reaction from local officials.

The afternoon concluded with audience members recalling their own Beatles memories from the Public Auditorium or Municipal Stadium keeping the Cleveland connection to "Beatlemania" front and center. Another participant shared that she had lived in Milwaukee where throngs of screaming fans camped outside the boys' hotel. She, along with her friend, decided to sneak around to the back. They were rewarded when John, Paul, George and Ringo exited the building and went straight to a waiting car. Other than a single policeman, nobody else was there to witness their escape!

One woman, somewhat more mature than the rest, asked what was the cause of all the mania surrounding the Beatles. She did not quite understand it. Volumes could be written, but perhaps it was because they were so original, charismatic and talented. Their music (both melodies and lyrics) has continued to stand the test of time. We did not know that then but sure do

At the conclusion of the Barton Senior Center's "Beatlemania" event, there was a buzz in the air. It could be said that a splendid time was had by all!

Horrific Gray Windowless Buildings Of The Most Bleak Kind:

Reviews Of Recent Releases By Local Bands, Pt. 96

Breathilizör - Emblematic Picasso Banshee Of Chaos Destructors - My Mind's Eye - 3 songs - CD

Somehow, these three songs last for almost an hour. That's the power of metal, I guess. Track 1 is "Hot Cup Of Doom," which is a pretty good heavy number set in some kind of shopping mall from hell (shopping mall of hell?). Absolutely ridiculous but at the same time kinda good, as you'd expect from Breathilizör. Hearing Food read off the names of businesses in his evil metal voice of chaos is pretty funny: "Hickory Farms...Sunglass Hut...a place that sells cellphones in the middle of the mall." This one's followed up by "Something Of Something, Part X." It's pretty impressive that they're up to Part X now. Is X the most metal roman numeral, or is V? I'm not sure. Please send in your opinions. The final track here is the big one, the almost painfully long "Future Invasion Of Robotic Mayhem." There are some pretty ripping parts, and of course it's great to hear Food's delivery (the way he says "unscrupulous" in the opening line has made me laugh every time), but it's almost more fun to read the included lyric sheet than actually sit through the whole thing. But then perhaps I just have a short attention span. In any case, if you're a Breathilizör fan like myself, you'll need

The Missed - The Missed - Just Because Records - 4 songs - 7", digital

This is the first real record for The Missed, following their tape on Quality Time from (I think) over a year ago now. It's pretty good. They're definitely sliding away from the more pop-punk sound of the tape toward a more Nervosas-esque post-punk kind of thing, but that's not necessarily a bad thing. They're still both poppy and punky, rest assured, just in a slightly different way. The songs are catchy, the rhythm section is great, and there's some excellent guitar playing on here (I particularly enjoy the solo on "I Wanna Know"). The opening "Stiff" is a tough stomper and for some reason "Summer Girl" reminds me of Paul Westerberg a bit despite not sounding like Paul Westerberg. I still kinda like the tape better (I wish someone would put that out on vinyl), but this is a solid EP to be sure, and I like it more and more with repeated listens. 4/5

Musical Thanksgiving Eve

by Denis DeVito

How about this for a nice Thanksgiving Eve event! An intimate "house concert" with Denis DeVito and Pete Cavano. We will perform at the Lakewood Plant Company(15612 Detroit Ave.) in downtown Lakewood on Wed. 11/27 from 7-9. As most of you are aware, Pete is one of the finest guitar players in the area. His "Chet Atkins style" of playing has earned him many accolades as a soloist as well as a fine session man. This will be quite a setting to hear Denis' stripped down originals and a couple of holiday tunes as well. The LPC will be open for business, so you can purchase cool house plants, pots and an assortment of gift ideas. It is $10 to get in, but it is BYOB. I am really looking forward to an evening of music in a laid-back setting. Hope you can join us!

Lakewood City Hall

City Council Discusses Scooters, Roads, Bricks, And The Future Of Meghan George's At-Large Seat

City Council began on November 18 by recognizing the winners of Keep Lakewood Beautiful's 2019 Beautiful Homes with an awards presentation. Once everyone got a chance to take a photo and congratulate the winners, Council President O'Leary started what turned into a very efficient City Council meeting where several new projects were discussed that will bring positive change to Lakewood.

Electric scooters and electric bikes

One of the issues coming out of the Public Safety committee is how Lakewood will respond to the popularity of electric scooters and bikes. While Ordinance 47-19 allows for eventual rules to be created, City Council would like to hear from residents and other experts in the community on what rules and safety precautions they feel they need in the city to keep everyone safe.

"We've been trying to bring in as many experts as we can. While the data is relatively new on this emerging activity, it is important we on Council do as much due diligence as we can to protect our residents," Councilperson Bullock commented. "We need to be careful we have a strategy in place that protects people from just wiping out on them, causing self-injury or potentially running into people on some of our more narrow sidewalks."

There are a lot of concerns being voiced on different message boards and within the community about this new trend hitting the Lakewood borders.

Bradley Presutto City Hall Reporter

Bullock added, "We can't just let this become the Wild West of e-scooters and e-bikes. We need to be proactive. Working together, we can make sure this can be an enjoyable activity without causing huge risks."

Speed tables on Marlowe Avenue

In recent years, Lakewood has been willing to take on pilot projects to install traffic calming devices on the residential roads. Lakewood has seen chicanes, road caps, and now the recent addition of speed tables on Marlowe.

According to the National Association of City Transportation Officials, the differences between the speed hump and speed table are as follows: Speed tables are mid-block traffic-calming devices that raise the entire wheelbase of a vehicle to reduce its traffic speed. Speed tables are longer than speed humps and are flat-topped, with a height of 3–3.5 inches and a length of 22 feet.

Councilperson Litten commented, "They are extremely popular right now. They're temporary, so we will see how this winter treats them. If successful, we will make them a permanent feature as part of the asphalt."

The goal of the speed table is to slow the vehicle down without making it go through a bunch of turns, keeping it simple. Litten added, "Some people have strong feelings about the chicanes, but we have heard nothing but positives about the speed tables. People are excited for the pilot to finish so they can request one for their street."

After the pilot program, City Council will determine what should be the overall strategy when deployed. Mayor-elect George has stated on the campaign trail, "We need to be smart about this. We don't want to push problems into other neighborhoods or streets. We need a thoughtful, proactive strategy that takes into account residents' feedback. Keeping our streets safe should be our top priority."

Lakewood Hospital bricks from A-Wing

Bryce Sylvester reconfirmed that this Friday and Saturday, residents will be able to obtain a brick from the former Lakewood Hospital A-Wing. The city has two truckloads of bricks and will distribute them at the Refuse & Recycling Facility at 12920 Berea Road.

If not all bricks are claimed, the city will announce additional pick-up hours during the Refuse Department's normal operations. Their goal is to make sure the bricks go to residents before mass pick-ups start occurring.

Pick Up Times

Friday, November 22 - Noon to 3:00pm

Saturday, November 23 - 9:00am to Noon

Meghan George's At Large seat

Lakewood's Charter provides City Council 60 days from January 1 to appoint someone to Mayor-elect George's At-Large seat when she is sworn in as mayor.

Lakewood City Council has had to utilize the appointment feature in the past. While the specific details are still being ironed out for this opening, there will be a post from City Hall requesting Cover Letters & Resumes from interested parties. While they will be accepting them in the near future, deliberation on a potential selection will not be entertained until Councilpersons-elect Neff and Shachner are sworn in.

In the past, there have been dozens of applicants with maybe only a dozen interviewed. This opening is already garnering similar interest from well-known residents of Lakewood like Finance Director Jen Pae, former City Council candidates Laura Rodriguez Carbone and Lindsey Grdina, and a Democratic Precinct Leader from Ward 3, Greg Mahoney.

In the coming weeks, I will be doing a write-up on the candidates who have put their names in to be considered, why they feel they should be appointed, and what they hope to accomplish. If you are a candidate interested in taking part in this piece, please contact me at bpresutto@gmail.com or 216.288.7045.

Rodriguez-Carbone Thanks Supporters, Announces Candidacy For At-Large Seat

by Laura Rodriguez-Carbone

Thank you to all my supporters who came out and voted this November. Over 1,100 people in Ward 1 voted for responsive community-centered government, inclusion, and putting our families and seniors first.

While running for this office, something wonderful and unintended happened. We began to gain support for this movement all over Lakewood. The issues we identified in our campaign: ensuring the health and wellbeing of our seniors and children, providing responsive constituent services, the need for alternative modes of public transit, and better communication with residents, are serious ones, and I am committed to keep fighting for them.

I ran into many voters outside of polling locations that said they voted for me because they want Lakewood City Council to better reflect our diversity. I agree. That's why I am announcing my candidacy for the appointment of Lakewood City Council At-Large and will continue actively campaigning, and actively helping residents wherever they are in Lakewood.

We ran a great race in Ward 1 and I am excited to keep going!

Please learn more about me at www.lauraforlakewood.com or on Facebook @lauraforlakewood.
